General Comment

I feel that it is unnecessary to implement new regulations & taxes on the taxpayers at this time when the economy is still not in good shape and people are struggling to get by. When Washington passes new rules & laws they do not think of the impact on the people in the long run, they only think of the impact in the short term. I understand we need to protect our waterways but this possible new ruling / law is going way overboard to protect the waterways at the expense of people's livelihood and I think that is wrong. We need to go about this in a more moderate way so as to not put people in financial trouble with increased taxes & regulations. This is wrong to protect the water & marine life at the expense of people.
